DEFENDS P. E. SERVICE

TRAFFIC MANAGER'S CONCISE
ACCOUNT OF CONDITIONS
ON GLENDALE LINE

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 25, 1916.
Mr. A. T. Cowan, Editor and Publisher, Glendale News, Glendale, California.

Dear Sir:

Have read with interest your editorial of November 15th, concerning service and fares between Los Angeles and Glendale.

Attached hereto is copy of our latest time card, in effect November 22nd, 1916, between Los Angeles and Glendale. You will notice that in the morning and evenings we operate 15-minute service of two or three car trains, according to the requirements of travel, while during the middle of the day 20-minute service is operated, and after 7 p. m. it is changed to 30-minute service.

There are certain times during the day as well as during the late evening hours when the cars are not loaded to anywhere near seating capacity, and of course outbound in the mornings, when sending our trains out to bring passengers in, they run very light. The same may be said of the trains in the opposite direction in the evenings. A check of the service on this line indicates that your statement that from 30 to 40 passengers are required to stand is apparently wrong. While some of our cars are loaded beyond seating capacity during the mornings and evenings, when the service is regular cannot find that as many passengers as you mention are required to stand at any time. On account of the congested conditions in Los Angeles mornings and evenings, due to so many automobiles as well as street cars on the streets at times, it is absolutely impossible to space our trains according to schedule, and this is where the trouble comes in. More cars would not help conditions much, for the reason that passengers board the first train that comes along and when they are irregular the first train is loaded far above seating capacity while the one following would possibly not be loaded to seating capacity.

This matter will be checked closely, as we want to give a reasonable and satisfactory service.

As to fares: Service and density of traffic taken into consideration, our fares now applying between Los Angeles and Glendale are fair and reasonable. Wish to call your attention to the fact that the Pacific Electric during the past fiscal year failed within approximately $820,000 to make its operating expenses and interest on the investment. This statement may be checked by anyone interested, as the necessary statements required by law are filed with the State Railroad Commission as well as the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Wish to assure you that the Pacific Electric does not in any way object to low fares as long as we can be assured that we will make a reasonable return on the investment. The shortage referred to above shows conclusively that this return is not being made at present, and, therefore, a reduction in fares cannot be considered at this time.

Glendale has been built up by the excellent service operated by this company, and now that the tax payers are providing the finest public highways in the world, it is not fair to furnish these highways to automobile buses to enter into competition with this company, giving an undependable and irregular service and charging such fares as they may see fit, raising and lowering them at will.

Yours truly,
D. W. PONTIUS.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETING

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church held its regular monthly business meeting in the social hall Friday evening. The president, Herbert Mattiesen, presided and Miss Helena Schwartz acted as secretary in the absence of Elwood Ingledue, who holds that office. Richard Berry was appointed as pianist for the league to fill the position left vacant by Mrs. Lloyd Wilson, who moved from Glendale. Considerable business was transacted and after the close of the business session nuts and wafers were served and the remainder of the evening spent in a social way and in singing Christmas songs. Later all adjourned to the church parlors where the Intermediate department of the Sunday school was enjoying a social.

Yours truly,
D. W. PONTIUS.

READY FOR BIG SHOW

PREPARATIONS IN PROGRESS
FOR THE OPENING OF POULTRY EXHIBIT

The show birds for the Glendale-Tropico Poultry Show are being placed in position and all preparations for the opening of the show tomorrow is being rushed to completion. There are 350 entries which are being arranged in four rows lengthwise of the spacious tent, which is 100 feet long and 60 feet wide located on the vacant lots at Broadway and Maryland avenue. Four large electric lights are being installed by the Glendale Electric company, which will make the show as attractive at night as during the day. The wire coops being used for the show are brand new and are being used for the first time at this show.

This being a local show, comprising entries from Glendale, Eagle Rock, Tropico, Burbank and intervening territory and consisting of 350 entries, speaks well for the enterprise of the poultry raisers of this valley, and many predict that this show will not be surpassed by any similar exhibit in Southern California this season.

The fine cups that are to be awarded at this show are now on display at the Dodds Jewelry store on Broadway and are the finest lot of cups ever given at a show of this kind.

As this is a local enterprise it behooves every resident of this community to attend this show and help to make it a grand success.

MEN'S MEETING

The Brotherhood of the West Glendale Methodist church is rapidly becoming a strong factor in the church and in that part of the city. Norcross preached a special sermon for the men, and the entire service was especially interesting and helpful to all. The Brotherhood is growing rapidly and all men in the western part of the city are urged to become identified with this body for their own good as well as for service to others.

LODGE OF SORROW

GLENDALE ELKS HONOR MEM-ORY OF THEIR BROTHERS
GONE BEFORE

The members of the Glendale Elks lodge, No. 1289, conducted memorial services in honor of their absent brothers in the Palace Grand theatre Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. George H. Melford, exalted ruler, presided. The members of the order marched from the B. P. O. E. club rooms in a body and took seats in front of the stage while the processional march was being played by the orchestra.

The exalted ruler announced the reason for this body coming together on such an occasion after which the officers and members sang very affecting "The Vacant Chair." The opening service was conducted by the officers and members. Albert D. Pearce, esteemed leading knight, called the roll of the departed brothers and as each name was called C. D. Thom, esquire, responded "absent." Eleven strokes of the clock accompanied each response. Rev. C. Irving Mills gave the invocation and Walter Buttery sang feelingly, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." William Bode, an accomplished violinist, played "Cavatina" in a very finished style, after which M. J. McGarry of Los Angeles, past exalted ruler of Los Angeles lodge No. 99, gave the memorial oration. Mr. McGarry's address will be published in full in this paper tomorrow. Leo Goode, one of Glendale's favorite vocalists, sang "Come Jesus, Redeemer," in his usual artistic manner and after the closing service and an appropriate solo by Frank Ragland, the lodge was closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne by the audience and the benediction by Dr. C. I. Mills.

This memorial service was in charge of a committee composed of Albert D. Pearce, S. S. Frenz, L. W. Chobe, H. G. Henning and R. D. Clements.

A Question

The Glendale Garden Society exists for the sake of others—for home and civic beauty—for the good of Glendale at large. Do you think it justifies its existence? If so, testify your appreciation by attending the public awarding of prizes on Thursday evening, December 7, when fifteen prizes will be given. Professor Alfred Cookman will speak on Our Feathered Friends, and Miss Felice Jung will give whistling bird solos. The program is free to the public. Let the auditorium be crowded with friends and well wishers, with public-spirited citizens interested in our young people and interested in the civic welfare of Glendale.

HIGH COST OF PRODUCTS

Cause and effect were familiar subjects to everyone who studied Davies Higher Arithmetic many years ago. Boys and girls were reminded by those early day teachers that there is a cause for the existence of everything that does exist, and that there is never an effect without a cause. Reasoning along the cause and effect line in considering the high cost of products, we may term the high prices the effect, and as every effect must have a cause it is in place for us to proceed to look for the cause:

It was only a few days ago since the high cost of Thanksgiving turkey was the theme of discussion. Now what was the cause of the high price of turkeys?

The price of this most desirable bird ranged from 30 cents to 40 cents per pound. Many ranchmen took individual orders for turkeys at 35 cents per pound,—the same price charged by some retailers. The price seems high as compared with the price charged several years ago, but it is high as compared with the price of other meats at the present time?

It is presumed that the ranchman is forced to charge a high price for chickens and turkeys because everything he buys on the market is higher. The wire fencing he uses in constructing poultry yards costs him more than formerly, and the foodstuffs and clothing he purchases for himself and family cost him much more than they did when he was selling turkeys for 25 cents per pound.

Then briefly stated the cause of the ranchman raising the price of turkeys is because someone has raised the price on products he buys. It is therefore an example of cause and effect. It is a good thing the ranchman has so much business sense that he stands ready to protect himself. If all prices can be raised uniformly, then everyone will be treated fairly, but while flour, potatoes and turkeys are bought by the consumers at a high price, these consumers, many of them, are not receiving higher wages, and their employers are not in a position to pay higher salaries. The retail grocer finds it difficult when his goods cost him more to sell for a price that will give him a profit that will include an extra raise in clerk hire. He finds a boycott threatened which forces him to sell at an even less margin of profit than he did when he could buy the merchandise of the wholesaler at a less price.

That business may be financially well balanced, the raise of prices must be uniform, including wages of clerks and all employees. Newspaper subscriptions and advertising rates should be raised for the reason that the persons who are employed in the publication of newspapers should have their salaries raised. What effect will such a raise have upon the patron of a paper? These patrons are now paying higher prices for products, and are not getting any greater income than formerly. A thorough and proper adjustment of prices and salaries is what is needed, and while these adjustments are being wrought out, consumers should not be rash in their demands.

A HOME INDUSTRY CHRISTMAS.

The Home Industry League is attracting the attention of the people of the State in their crusade for a "Home-Industry-Christmas." Stated briefly all the members of the league are being communicated with by Charles R. Thornburn, executive secretary, who is pointing out that $15,000,000 will be spent by the people of California for Christmas gifts this year and that if all of this money is spent with the merchants of this State, in the home towns of the various purchasers, and if each purchaser insists on "looking for the label to see that the article is "made in California," that the coming winter will see the pleasing spectacle of few or no unemployed people on the streets of any town, with the further assurance that there will be few burglaries by men thrown out of work by California factories.

PETERSEN'S PORTERVILLE RANCH

When R. A. Petersen of 570 West Broadway makes a trip to Porterville and remains for several weeks it is not because he is bent on having a leisure time, but rather because he has chosen to spend a few weeks at work overseeing the care of his orange and lemon ranch which is located about four miles north of Porterville. Mr. Petersen owns at that place 10 acres of lemons, 5 acres of bearing orange trees and 5 acres of a young orange orchard. When it comes to the picking season Mr. Petersen finds it to his advantage to be on the ground and oversee the work. Himself and family returned from Porterville about ten days ago after a month being spent on their ranch.

F. A. G. DANCE

The Foothill Athletic club dance Thanksgiving night was one of the best ever given at the Masonic temple. Decorations were the most artistic that have recently been seen. At one end of the hall were the goal posts, all wrapped with blue and white paper and draped with ferns, while the floor was marked off like a football field. From the lights hung footballs and these caused much merriment later in the evening when they were taken down and thrown around the room. Around the walls were hung pennants of all states and colleges. Football pictures also hung on the walls. For a cold night the punch sure did go fast and it was mighty good. More than fifty couples were present from all section of Southern California. From the time of the grand march, which was led by Harry Glazier and Miss Catherine Lord, to the end, everybody enjoyed themselves. Another dance will be given in February by the F. A. C.

DISEASES OF PIGEONS

Provided breeding stock was healthy when secured, cleanliness in pens, flyways, and yards is the best preventative against canker and "going light," the most common diseases of pigeons. There is very little chance of making money from squabs unless through cleanliness pigeons can be kept comparatively free from disease and insect parasites. The following advice is taken from Farmers' Bulletin No. 684, Squab Raising:

The stock should be carefully watched and any sick birds removed from the breeding pens. The house should be kept dry, clean, well ventilated, and free from drafts. The yards should be kept clean either by scraping the surface and adding fresh sand or gravel or by cultivating the land and planting it to grain if possible. Only good, sound grain should be fed.

The nests, nest boxes, and pens should be kept clean, but it is not advisable to disturb the nests which contain eggs or squabs any more than is actually necessary. The pens should be sprayed frequently with whitewash containing a little crude carbolic acid, or with a coal-tar disinfectant, and the nest boxes and perches should be examined for mites, especially in hot weather, and sprayed with kerosene oil or some commercial preparation which will kill mites, if any are found. The nests or nest pans should be cleaned out and the nesting material removed after the squabs are marketed or leave the nests.

Pigeons are subject to many of the diseases which affect poultry and may be treated in the same manner. Canker and the disease or condition called "going light" seem to be more prevalent in pigeons than in the domestic fowl. Canker appears as sores or cheesy patches in the mouth and throat and can usually be prevented by providing good sanitary conditions and feeding only clean, sound grains and clean water. It may be treated by swabbing the mouth and throat with a solution of equal parts of hydrogen peroxide and water or by using dry sulphur. Enough potassium permanganate may be added to the drinking water to give it a wine color. Various remedies or preventatives of disease are used in the drinking water by pigeon breeders whenever the stock appears to be in poor condition. Among these are carbolic acid, epsom salts, copper sulphate, and venetian red. Ulcers sometimes appear on the head, around the bill, eyes, mouth, or in the throat, and pigeons thus affected should usually be killed.

"Going light" is more or less peculiar to pigeons and is difficult to cure. It may be brought about by feeding filthy or unsound grains, by filthy conditions, and by any factor which tends to destroy the vitality of the pigeons. The symptoms of this condition are a gradual loss of flesh, frequently accompanied by diarrhea. The practical method of treatment is to remove the cause. Pigeons in this or any other diseased condition will often get well if allowed their freedom. Tonics are used by some pigeon breeders, especially during the molting season, but their constant use is not generally advised under normal conditions.

Dead squabs may be due to a variety of reasons. Some of the possible causes are extra males or unmated pigeons in the breeding pens, rats or mice in the house, and lack of vitality in the breeding stock, caused by the use of improper or the lack of sufficient feed, filthy conditions, or careless inbreeding.

A new bleaching method invented by an Oakland man recently was tested at the Santa Ana Valley walnut house before fifty growers and representatives of the California Walnut Growers' Association, proving satisfactory in every way and it is said will probably be adopted by many of the associations. The bleach is said to be no better than the old, but just as good and three-

Miss Green—No, James, I didn't know that they ever planted that way. Tell me about it.

James—Well, you see, the onions make the eyes of the potatoes water and furnish moisture enough for both.
